Art & Design Living-Learning Community

In the Art and Design Living-Learning Community (A+D LLC) we discover how to be a successful artist and/or designer, and student, connect directly with faculty, and explore the disciplines and resources of the School—from dark rooms and weaving looms to a wood shop and 3D printers. We investigate each of the School's programs including animation/interactive design, art education, art history, ceramics, cinematic arts and media production (film), graphic design, illustration, metal design (jewelry), painting, photography, printmaking sculpture, and textile design. The A+D LLC is an option for incoming freshmen enrolled in one of the School of Art and Design’s degrees.

The primary goal of the Art + Design LLC is to assist incoming freshmen in adjusting to college life the unique demands of being an Art and Design major. The A+D LLC will focus on:

• Helping students develop the skills and habits of a successful Art and Design student
• Connecting them to resources within the School
• Learning about the disciplines housed within the School
• Facilitating connections with others including peers, faculty and staff, community members, etc.
