Athletics Living-Learning Community

Program Overview
The Athletics Living-Learning Community is designed to promote the concept of leadership development within its members. Coursework will revolve around a review of leaders and their methods, with practical application involving team skills. The participants selected for the Athletics LLC will be exposed to various campus-wide social activities available to the general ECU student population, but not normally accessible to student-athletes.

Selection as a student athlete for a varsity sport at East Carolina University is required for admission to the Athletics Living-Learning Community. Coaches will help determine the participants.

Program Goals
The primary goal of the Athletic LLC is to build leaders among our student athletes. The classes these athletes take focus on leadership development which help prime these students to serve as team captains and represent their teams on the Student-Athlete Advisory Committee.
