Jarvis Leadership Living-Learning Community

The Jarvis Leadership Program Living-Learning Community strives to empower students for academic success through involvement in leadership, citizenship, and relationship building at East Carolina University. Residents of Jarvis Hall are involved, successful, civic-minded students who are dedicated to enhancing their personal growth and leadership development. Throughout the year, they interact with successful community members and civic leaders as well as participate in interactive workshops, leadership seminars, skill training, and service-learning. Jarvis Leadership Program strives to develop and maintain a tradition of leadership and achievement. One of the primary tenants of Jarvis is student learning. The programs and workshops we offer are instrumental in making sure that learning occurs in the residence halls. Programming is an essential component of numerous initiatives designed to meet the unique needs of Leadership students. Through achievement in the Jarvis Leadership Program, residents will:

- Learn from and teach his/her peers about one's own leadership experience
- Plan to participate in the English 1100 or COAD 1000, and LDSP-1000 for Jarvis Residents
- Live in an environment conducive to superior academic achievement
- Give back to the surrounding Greenville community through service initiatives by completing 20 service hours a semester
- Have and maintain a semester GPA of 2.75 and cumulative GPA of 2.75
- Maintain an acceptable level of conduct while residing in Jarvis Leadership Hall.
- Move into Jarvis Hall on Wednesday, August 16, 2017 prior to 2pm
- Attend and participate in ECU Leads Retreat on August 16-18, 2017
