Honors Living Learning Community

The Honors College provides students with an environment that fosters academic excellence and encourages students to learn beyond the classroom. First-year Honors students live together in Gateway Hall where they form relationships with each other and upper-class high achieving students who serve as mentors to them.

This diverse intellectual community for academically talented students of strong character participate in a challenging and innovative, team-based curriculum that supports human-centered design. Students use their entrepreneurial knowledge to understand grand challenges, and in groups, they present solutions to these wicked problems. Students leave the Honors College with a foundation of skills and experiences needed to make them competitive for prestigious graduate programs, international fellowships, and careers following graduation.

“Being an EC scholar in the Honors College means that I have been given an opportunity to pursue my goals and passions. I have a team of people behind me who have supported me through my time at ECU and I am extremely thankful that they have taken a chance on me and encouraged me to stretch myself beyond what I thought I could do.” - Joanna Paul, EC Scholar, Class of 2018
