Quest Living Learning Community

QUEST, the Transfer Student Living-Learning Community, is an exciting residential learning environment open to incoming transfer students wanting to live on campus. The community is structured to help transfer students make a seamless transition into ECU. Programs and activities are intended to facilitate meaningful connections among students and encourage early engagement within the ECU community. One of the many benefits to participating in QUEST Transfer Living-Learning Community is the opportunity to connect with administrators, faculty, and staff who have an interest in helping you succeed. In addition, the Global Discussion Classroom provides QUEST students with the unique opportunity to learn with students across the world without having to leave the country. The Quest Transfer Student Living-Learning Community strives to provide a smooth transition to East Carolina University, promotes leadership and teamwork, encourage global awareness, strives to prepare students successfully transition into a multi-cultural workforce, and encourage meaningful civic engagement and community service. QUEST is your journey toward success!

“Quest creates a foundation of relationship that helps connect transfer students and build memories that will never be forgotten...a college moment that couldn’t have been better and will definitely be remember for the rest of our lives...” Kim Le
